Prize Money For Winning Olympic Athletes in Paris

World Athletics are planning to pay $50,000 to gold medallists at the Olympics in Paris, making the track and field as the first sport to introduce money, although many countries already have financial incentives for medallists. Also it is planned that payments for silver and bronze medallists will apply to start from the 2028 Olympics in Los Angeles. The governing body of athletics said it was putting aside $US2.4 million to pay the gold medallists across the 48 events on the track and field program for this year's Paris Olympics. Relay teams will split the $US50,000 between their members. World Athletics President Sebastian Coe stated that "I think it is important we start somewhere and make sure some of the revenues generated by our athletes at the Olympic Games are directly returned to those who make the Games the global spectacle that it is," Aussie Olympic swimming legend Dawn Fraser was quick to weigh in with her comments "The athletes deserve it, they put a lot of time into their training and I think it's a wonderful idea that they're doing this now. "They've got a lot of money from holding the Olympic Games. It costs a lot of money, but it's the athletes who perform."The Data Graph shows the price change of gold since the medals in 1915 !!
